

Dr Ian Guinan

A GP with interests in the treatment of addictions and primary care treatment in custodial environments, Ian has a broad range of experience from hospital medicine and psychiatry, through work as an inner city GP to work in rural Australia. Helping patients address problems with alcohol and drugs has always been a strong element of his work.

Growing up in Lancaster and having moved to work as a GP in Morecambe in 1999, Ian has a strong connection with the local area. With his keen business acumen he saw an opportunity in 2007 to use his specialist knowledge to form Delphi Medical with Dr John Richmond.

Together they have grown a business which has built on its strength of knowledge in the addiction treatment sector to extend to providing primary care services in prisons. Creative and innovative, Delphi Medical has found itself able to respond to the changing landscape of the NHS without losing a strong patient focus.

Ian is an enthusiastic musician and fan of cinema and through these interests acquired an acute interest in information technology and new media. Bringing these skills to the work environment brings additional strengths to his business development and project management skills.
